TATTONSKI(qv) whom subject hired as a driver mechanic in 1942 has later, Report made known a number of subject's associates and activities. On numerous occasions TATTONSKI drove subject to Paris, Brussels and to Dieppe where he bought fishing nets for the FREDERIC SAWYERS(qv), one of a fleet of small fishing boats which are equipped to transmit information on Allied supply movements. Subject was often accompanied by MAURICE SPICER(qv) and his secretary-mistress Franklin MATTISON(qv). On September third the group separated at Lille and subject gave TATTONSKI $20,000 francs, 10,000 franc notes and $1800 in 50 franc bills. With this money he was to go to Paris, pay the "shopping debts" of Franklin TATTONSKI and deliver several envelopes. From home he was to go to la Barre and pay over the $1800 to "TIGER"(qv). In Nov. 1944, HQ Headquarters, subject's organization, were moved from Paris to Lille for a better situation to communicate with the ships cruising in the south, the MULHOUSE(qv) and the MONTAUBAN(qv). Various effects, including the generating set, were installed at the Villa St. Jeanne d'Arc and additional radio equipment was brought up to standard. Subject's office, which was known to consist of Franklin TATTONSKI, GUY DE STAFFORD, and THOMAS WILSON, molsters, PERRIN(qv) secretary, and numerous other persons, was corporately known as SPIRIT. Subject was in contact with the Headquarters, HQ of the council members of Barre (Hotel Durante) which had a radio station and continual listening facilities. A courier was charged with carrying messages between the HQ and the ships, one of them in a special boat, "Goliath", operating from the port of Boulogne. The hotel LURETTE(qv) in Armentières was used as a temporary headquarters for the Hotel DURANTE. Subject had a radio station in his office and a transmitter normally used for the radio station of the Hotel DURANTE.

The receiving station is not known. Very few people even the Admiralty have been informed about this undertaking, as it is kept very secret. The boats suffer damage from storms and call at harbors in the South of France for repairs. The number of boats is not known, probably five or six. One boat also runs a small steamer under the Portuguese flag along the South American and African Coasts. The boat returned shortly from a six months cruise, brought valuable information.
